Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 01 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Frequently sunny, before turning cold and wet midweek.

Today:
A cloudy start in places with fog patches, mostly confined to the east of the country, lingering in the morning. Otherwise a fine and dry day with plenty of sun. Remaining mild, particularly under any sunshine. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Fog reforms into the night, at first in the east but gradually moving westwards. Some coastal areas stay clear however, and here frost is likely to form. Chilly. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Tuesday:
A fine day with plenty of sunshine for most, but a cloudy day with lingering fog for some eastern areas. Mild in the sunshine but feeling colder under any cloud. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Becoming cold and cloudy, with showers in the south Wednesday. Then turning drier Thursday, though still with some patchy light rain. Cloud cover then become patchy, giving sunny spells Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.